Chauncey M Depew then rose in a humorous vein and paid Westchester county many compliments that delighted hearers. He said that Blaine is the one in one hundred years that commands respect of all parties and all men Mr Reid was called for at the close of Mr Depew's remarks He simply thanked the citizens people for their courtesy to his guests

BLAINE'S LOYAL LOYALTY

White Plains N Y, Oct 14 — The present Republicans including Gen G N Clarkson, Cornelius N Bliss, Joseph H Manley, Chairman Carter and Louis M Comee, secretary of the national Republican committee, who were invited by Mr Reid to meet Mr. Blaine at dinner last night were driven to the station this morning and boarded the 8 40 train for New York Neather of the gentlemen would discuss what took place except to say that Mr Blaine had assured them that he was loyal and would do all in his power to assist in the election of Harrison and Reid as far as his physical condition would permit It is still an open question whether the ex-secretary will make a public address during the campaign

Minister Ryan Interviewed

Albuquerque, N M, Oct 14 — The Democrat has the following interview Hon Thomas Ryan, minister to Mexico is the guest of Albuquerque He is suffering from bronchial trouble and will remain for a few days at Las Vegas hot springs before proceeding to Washington On account of throat troubles he cannot take the stump in Kansas as expected.

He is reticent about his mission to Washington but admits the probability of a new international treaty soon, and it is surmised his trip has something to do with it He says the relations of the two peoples are getting closer and more cordial daily He flatly denies the story that the Garza revolution was fomented to affect the price of bonds and has the highest regard for the integrity of President Diaz. Mexico is suffering much from the depression of silver but mining is active throughout the republic

He expresses himself strongly in favor of statehood for New Mexico.

Carnegie Interviewed

London, Oct. 14.—Mr Andrew Carnegie submitted to a long interview to-day in the Hotel Metropole, it being the first time he spoken freely to a newspaper man since the recent serious labor troubles at his extensive works in Homestead, Pa. He said that he would start for the continent on Tuesday next and that he intended to devote the winter, by visiting the various cities of Europe and inspecting the large manufactories which they contained.

He informed the reporter that he had been busily engaged all during the spring and summer in preparing a new book treating of the industrial problems of the day

Since the deplorable Homestead events, which had burst upon him like a thunder bolt from a clear sky, he had been unable to work much They had such an effect upon him that he had perforce to lay his book aside and resort to the lochs and moors, fishing daily from morning to night Now everything had been practically settled at the works, as telegrams which he had now received showed that all the troops had left Homestead and that the ranks of the strikers had been broken The old men were returning daily to their former places, and the trouble was virtually a thing of the past. He would now go to the continent and work with a fresh and happy mind For all the deplorable incidents of the Homestead strike his chief regret was that so many of the old men had allowed their places to be filled.

Cloud Burst at Genoa.

Genoa, Oct. 14 —The provinces of Genoa and Porto Maurizia have been totally devastated by a cloud burst. The rain began several days ago and has continued almost without cessation. Low night and early this morning the storm gathered in unprecedented violence, filling the streams, flooded villages and swept many houses from their foundations.

In Busalla and Mahnanego trucks farming implements and outhouses were swept through the streets. Bridges were carried away and travel on most of the country roads was rendered impossible. Many miles of railway are under water On the line to Ovio traffic has ceased entirely, as the tracks have been flooded and at one spot a cave in of the bank has blocked the road for half a mile. In this city the damage to buildings had been considerable. Several of the smaller pavilions of the Columbus exhibition were wrecked and the larger buildings were started on their foundations. Several persons are reported to have been drowned in the country districts, but as all regular communication has been suspended the report cannot be confirmed.

All Quiet in Coffeyville

Coffeyville Kas., Oct. 14 —Everything is quiet this morning. No raid was made last night and nothing serious is expected at present. All sorts of wild rumors are afloat and it is hard to get facts. A report came in this morning that another train was held up and robbed last night on the Missouri Pacific west of this city, but it seems the only foundation for the rumor was that some tramps had broken into a freight car at Dearing, the first station west of here, and took some canned goods and provisions

Oil and Gas in Chicago

Chicago, Oct 14 - The suburb of Glencoe is excited over the discovery of a gas well. A well at the depth of 150 feet struck oil, which shot up to the height of thirty feet above the surface When the flow subsided gas was emitted which burned for two days and nights. The price of land from $500 an acre has advanced to $3,000.

How Grant Got a Good Horse

One of Grant's American friends was a great deal better than in telling him the matter of which he discovered a fault and insisted that the dragoman should take him back to the stall in and ask him to send a better horse The dragoman replied that he could not do that the horse was a gift to the sultan and that the dragoman would be used the property about not taking a gift horse in the mouth But the minister insisted and the dragoman went to the stall and in laughed for and once He is by the way a man of fine sensibilities and is an interpreter for the legation by no means most important of all men to Americans in Turkey

Said he I felt very much ashamed of myself and my mission and I did not know what I could do until at last a thought struck me that the horse was a black one and that black was the color of mourning in America When I entered the palace the first thing that the secretary asked me was as to how the minister and myself liked the horses and I replied that they were the finest horses that we had ever seen and that our president would feel very proud and would be delighted with the gift I then went on to praise the horses and especially the black one which I said was magnificent in every respect but—here I stopped and the secretary anxiously asked 'But what' Is there anything the matter with the horse?

No' said I but you know black is the color of mourning in the United States It means death with us, and I just wondered whether such a gift might not be considered ominous if sent by the sultan' The secretary saw the point at once, he spoke to the sultan and I was thanked for my suggestion and the horse was changed for one of another color and as sound as a dollar'—Rider and Driver

Would Be Liberal.

The summer residents of a Cape Cod town made up their minds that they must have a casino The building was intended pretty strictly for their own use but it seemed wise to enlist the interest of the natives in the project especially as the projectors wished to secure a site at as low a figure as possible A building and finance committee was appointed, and an old resident a Mr Buffon, was made one of the three members of it

He was the owner of the lot on which the summer cottagers had set their hearts At the first meeting of the committee the matter of contributions was broached Mr Buffon left his colleagues in no doubt as to his position He declined to contribute a cent

Then the two cottagers labored with him over the matter Fifteen hundred dollars was his lowest figure They explained to him the advantages that would accrue to the place through the erection of the casino and the inevitable enhancement of the value of his other property, but he held out for $1 500 Finally one of the committee said

'Mr Buffon, you should either knock off something from the price of the lot, or if we buy it for $1,500 you should make a handsome contribution"

'Well' said Mr Buffon, "I'm ready to do something for you I can't let the land go for less than $1,500, but if you'll make the figure $1,600 I'm ready to contribute $100 to the fund"

The meeting was adjourned on motion of one of the summer visitors.—Harper's

To Drill a Child Whose Shoulders Stoop

Stand, feet together, weight over the center of each foot, hands at side Raise arms sidewise to level with shoulders taking a deep breath at the same time, lowering slowly, exhaling

Raise arms sidewise over head, inhaling, lower arms, exhaling See that neither the head nor the abdomen be pushed forward

Bend arms at elbows hands in front of shoulders, brought as far sidewise as possible, elbows close to side, extend up and palms in, arms carried back and stretching up as far as possible Avoid tendency mentioned in second exercise

Extend hands straight out at side, fingers leading

Extend hands downward and back of the hips

Bend arms at elbows, lift sidewise to horizontal, elbow drawn well backward, palms down, forearm and hand on a straight line, sliding forearms out and back till on a line with upper arms. Keep chest well expanded This throws the chest out, presses the shoulder blades down and corrects the tendency to round shoulders

These exercises educate, strengthen and develop the muscles designed by nature to hold the body in an erect position Repeat each exercise several times.—Exchange.

The Wedding Present Nuisance

Said a lady to me recently "We don't know very intimately the parties to be married, but our presents will be exhibited among the others, and we should be ashamed not to have them as elegant as those of our neighbors." And this same lady could ill afford to buy things for her own household, saying nothing of a thousand ways in which she could better have spent the money It useless to reason that people need not give presents As long as we have such a needless fashion they will feel obliged to give, just as they do at Christmas, when half the time they have little heart or pleasure in it

The recipients always know that in the years to come they also will be obliged to give presents in return spoons, sugar bowls, butter dishes that often are in duplicates and of no use to the possessor This society fashion for people who are in ordinary circumstances is indeed a social oppression It is pleasant to give and pleasant to receive, but not when you are certain that many are unable to give and do so only because it is the custom —Sarah K. Bolton in New York Independent.

Objectionable Phrases

'Lady friend' and 'gentleman friend" are phrases than which there are few more grating and few more strictly tabooed by well spoken people If you want to express the facts it must be done in separate phrases as 'I have a friend a gentleman' or a friend of mine a lady,' of course unless you feel that it is necessary to state that your friend is a lady or gentleman you can use 'man or woman' In fact it has become the practice to use these titles in preference to the former almost entirely The most perfect lady does not object to being called a woman—she glories in it rather As for the men—well they are just called men How ridiculous it would be if they insisted on being called gentlemen whenever one spoke of them' It would be like Thackeray's valet in 'Pendennis," who was a gentleman's gentleman'—Philadelphia Times

Escape of a Wheelbarrow.

A curious incident occurred at Heceta Head, Or., the other day One of the workmen on the lighthouse accidentally let go of his wheelbarrow, which rolled down the cliff, over rocks a distance of 200 feet, into the ocean, and was a few days later picked up on the beach, ten miles this side of Heceta, in perfect good order.—Philadelphia Ledger

QUITE FAVORABLE.

Trade Indications Summarized by R G Dun & Co

EXPORTS ARE INCREASING

Extraordinary Activity in Manufactures Great Demands for Iron Improved Crop Prospects A Rise in Silver

New York Oct 14 R G Dun & Co's Weekly Review of Trade will say

Once more I must be able to say that trade indications are entirely favorable From the shrinkage in exports has ceased, an increase of $1,500,000 appearing here last week while imports remain surprisingly large and foreign exchange declines Government crop reports for Oct. 1 were on the whole much more favorable than was expected and the markets discussed a public belief that the facts are more favorable than the government estimates Trade throughout the country is somewhat larger than a year ago and in all the great branches of manufacturing there is extraordinary activity Money is in greater demand at almost all commercial centers but there seem nowhere any stringency, the supply being ample for legitimate business and collections as a rule are exceptionally good

Boston reports active dry goods trade, busy shoe factories, steady business in leather and lumber and very good trade in furniture

At Philadelphia the iron market decidedly improves western orders for coal cannot be filled because the roads are blocked and good orders for the spring trade are reported in dry goods, while the whole market continues active trade in jewelry is fair and paints and oils are active At Baltimore the infrequency of southern failures is gratifying, collections are more satisfactory and trade in some lines shows a material increase.

Pittsburg reports a stiffer market for pig iron and a good demand for manufactured products with improving prospects in the glass business, window glass being more active.

Trade in boots and shoes and hats is satisfactory at Cincinnati, sales somewhat exceeding last year's

At Cleveland rolled iron is in large demand though pig is lower than ever in price and trade in nearly all lines is good. The boot and shoe trade at Indianapolis reports increased sales

Chicago again reports enormous increase in receipts, those of wheat, oats and barley having doubled, while receipts of corn are about fifteen times last year's: in wool a gain of 40 per cent. is reported, in cattle and hogs 50 per cent., and same increase in flour, dressed beef, butter and cheese. Business was never more prosperous and orders, shipments of merchandise are of enormous magnitude. Trade is remarkably strong at St. Louis, the total clearings proving larger than was anticipated, business is larger than last year at Kansas City, receipts of products being liberal and very good at Denver.

At Minneapolis nearly all branches show increase over last year, and the output of flour, 250,000 barrels, is the largest ever known in a week.

At St Paul an increased movement in crops is seen, and farmers are reported as ploughing for an increased acreage.

At Omaha trade in groceries and hardware is very busy. Business at Nashville is improving, but at Little Rock still dull though, in dry goods fair. At New Orleans business is active with brighter prospects and money in large demand but sufficient supply.

Exports of breadstuffs, provisions, oil and cattle in September were but $10,315,746 in value, against $59,451,247 last year, more than $14,000,000 of the decrease being in breadstuffs, for last year's movement was far beyond all precedent. The fall in prices since last year, 24 cents in wheat, 2 cents in cotton, 1 cent per gallon in oil and about $10 per head in cattle, makes a difference of about $6,000,000 in value of exports for the month. Rarely there has been improvement in exports with lower prices. While it is stronger than a week ago, cotton 1 cent lower, oats ½ cent and lard 15 cents per 100 pounds, cotton ½ lower with sales of more than 1,100,000 bales, oil ½ lower. Improved crop reports and heavy movement of products push prices downward.

The iron output Oct. 1, was 158,765 tons weekly against 151,048 tons Sept. 1, and it is especially encouraging that the stocks on hand decreased 6,978 tons during September The disposition for pig iron is improving, and a general advance of about 50 cents per ton is reported for pig with liberal buying, while trade in plates is very satisfactory, in bar iron somewhat better and structural mills are full of orders. Lively buying continues in copper at 11¾ cents, and speculation moves up upward, but lead is weak and unsettled at 4 cents. Cotton and woolen mills are fully employed and many of them cannot fill their orders, though running their machines night and day Sales of wool this year, at the three chief markets have been 247,000,000 pounds against 194,000,000 to the same date last year. The market for dry goods continues encouraging, agents having started vigorously in the spring trade and the demand for spring samples of men's goods being urgent. Trade in blankets was exceptionally large in September and the lower grades cannot be supplied fast enough. Strong buying is seen in cottons and some makes are largely oversold. The boot and shoe manufacture is equally busy, and shipments from Boston, according to The Shoe and Leather Reprter are 83,000 cases for the week against 64,000 last week Stocks have been stronger, with an average advance of about $1 00 per share, but the chief activity has been in industrial and New England stocks The improved crop prospects and the enormous movement of wheat justify encouragement, and buyers are thinking much of next year's business dating from the World's Fair The money market is fairly active at about 5 per cent and the treasury, while holding $5,800 000 more gold and $1,000,000 more silver has added $7 000,000 to the note circulation

The business failures during the last seven days number for the United States 189, Canada 26, total 215, as compared with 207 last week, 208 the week previous to the last and 239 for the corresponding week of last year

CANADIAN TRADE.

New York, Oct. 14 —Canadian advices to Bradstreet's on the state of trade say At Montreal the tendency of iron and steel to advance has also shown itself, and the orders for spring drygoods are liberal At Quebec City, shoe manufacturers have had a very prosperous year. Tanned leather tends to higher prices. At Toronto there is a satisfactory trade among dealers in drygoods, hardware and groceries Receipts of barley are increased, but the export demand is slack.

New York Stock Market.

New York, Oct. 14.—Money on call loaned at 5@6 per cent The closing price was 6 per cent

There was considerable more doing on the stock exchange this morning than during the five hours of yesterday The sales amounted to 160,000 shares by noon. Most of this total was contributed by New England, Burlington, Louisville, New Albany and Chicago, Chicago Gas, Omaha, Reading and Missouri Central. Trading was the most active and I to 1½ per cent the general market under the lead of New England was strong and advanced ½ to 1¾ per cent by noon

The stock market was less active after 12 o'clock while prices were weak and irregular New England which was the feature of the morning both in point of strength and activity, was quite freely sold during the last half of the day and closed within a fraction of last night's figures An incident of the day was an advance of 1 per cent in salvers but there was no real basis for the advance The general market closed irregularly and slightly changed from last night's figures The sales for the day amounted to 388 448 shares

Southern Poverty

Philadelphia Manufacturer

Only those persons who have business relations with the southern people realize the measure of the commercial depression that exists in the south at this moment Not only has the recent "boom" in that quarter expended its force, but there has been a severe restriction of ordinary commercial transactions, and payments are slow for sales that have been made. The mass of the people are poor They are not able to buy liberally, and their poverty has a depressing influence, of greater or less extent, upon the trade of the whole country. The explanation of the fact lies in the circumstance that the mass of the producers of wealth in the south are growers of cotton When they prosper the merchants and all the intermediary and collateral industries prosper, and when they have little money there are hard times for everybody. The favorite theory of some persons who study the situation is that the usually large dimensions of the cotton crop of last year overloaded the market and forced prices below the point of possible profit. And there are persons who actually hold the opinion that the planters will be benefited and that the general condition of things will be improved if blight and worms and inundations shall this year reduce the product of cotton to normal figures. They believe that to have a calamity befal some of the planters, to the profit of others, will produce advantage to the community as a whole. This doctrine is both monstrous and absurd

It is a safe assertion that the southern states did not last year produce a pound of cotton in excess of what the requirements of the world's markets would have been, had those markets been in a healthful condition. The crop was larger than its producer, but the consuming power of mankind has always heretofore steadily increased with the increasing crop. The consuming power did not increase last year, as it should have done, for the single reason that the purchasing power of the south declined, namely, the depression of prices all over the world made the producers of wealth, and particularly the farmer class, poor. As this depression of prices was practically universal, appearing in staple food products as well as in fibers, the cause of it must be looked for elsewhere than in extraordinary production The real cause is to be found in the appreciation of gold, the standard of all value, because of the growing demand for that metal in the presence of a diminishing supply. In other words, cotton went down because gold went up. The advanced value of gold compelled the cotton grower to give more cotton for a gold dollar. Plainly stated, cotton fell when silver fell, and both went down when gold went up. The original source of the entire movement was the demonetization of silver, which compelled the doing of the world's business in gold alone, and we assert with confidence that, no matter what the issue of the next cotton crop may be, no permanent advance of prices for that material, or for any other of the great staples, will be made until silver shall be remonetized. The solitary hope of the southern planter is that the civilized world will shortly return to the practice of bimetallism The failure of the coming international silver conference to procure this result will be, we dare aver, a calamity of vast and overwhelming proportions, not alone to the people of our own country, but to the men of every land who produce wealth by toil.

It must, however, be admitted that there is another reason why the south, while suffering from silver demonetization, has less business activity than the north, which is suffering from the same cause. The south is in great of an infusion of new blood. It requires immigration from the north and west and from Europe, and the more liberal investment of money from those sources in industrial enterprises. Movements of this kind are discouraged by the unnatural political conditions and the lawlessness which prevail in the southern states. An American who desires to go to the south knows that he must practically surrender his right of free political action if he would be comfortable there. In this part of the country he can vote as he pleases. Down there he cannot have good standing, or even, in some cases, physical safety, unless he shall consent to act with a single political party The men who have money to invest in industrial enterprises are usually protectionists and they desire for the success of their undertakings the perpetuation of the protective system They know that in nearly every southern congressional district, they will find a free trader representing the people in Washington, and they will find the people bent upon sending such men to congress to vote against their best interests and those of all investors in industrial enterprises It is not unnatural, in such a case, for such men to prefer to make their ventures in some other part of the country where they can exercise the privileges of freemen without interference.

In this particular the southern people are reaping what they have sowed. No community can persist in following evil courses without bringing harm to itself. These people prefer to maintain by unfair means the supremacy of one political party, and they have their wish; but their action deprives the country of the opportunity for enlarging its wealth, which it might otherwise have, and the party to which it gives its unhallowed affections is doing the best it can to smite down and to destroy the few manufacturing industries that are the best hope of the south to-day. No matter what is done with silver, the south as a states will never have any large measure of the prosperity enjoyed by northern states until there is within their borders the same freedom of opinion and action that is permitted as a mere matter of course in every state north of Mason and Dixon's line.

THE TAX LEVY

There is more than the usual amount of interest being felt in the annual tax levies, which are now under consideration by the various officials and which will shortly be announced. Last year the levy was as follows, under the various heads:

	Mills
City	16
County	12
State	4 1/2
School	11
Total	43 1/2

This, it may be remarked in passing was an unusually high rate, and there were ample reasons at the time of the especial reasons for it, and prophecies that it would not be likely to occur again. The announcement therefore which has been made that it would be likely that this year's levy would be even in excess of that of last year has been received with surprise and even with some indignation.

It is true that when absolute value is taken into consideration the rates here are not excessive, as they appear to be and that they are not greater than in many western cities which have had centuries to perfect improvements and establish values where we have had decades. But it is undeniable that the mention of the rate of taxation in our western cities,—for Colorado Springs is far from being alone in this respect,—does have an unpleasant effect on the intending investor who does not understand that the valuation on which the property is taxed is from one third to one fifth of its real value.

All will agree that on general principles taxation should be made as low as possible. Most people will also agree that it is not fair to place upon the people of to-day the whole, or even the greater part, of the burdens of public improvements which are equally for the benefit of future generations but of which the imperative demands of modern civilization require the immediate construction. It is not extravagance which leads to the bonding of cities counties and school districts for permanent improvement, nor is it the desire to avoid the payment of honorable obligations. It is simple business wisdom and a fair sharing of the burden between those who are and those who are to come after.

It is the opinion of Colorado Springs business men and taxpayers to-day that nothing but the most extreme necessity will justify an increase of the rate of taxation over that of last year. There are good reasons for this opinion. In every appearance the city is at the beginning of a season of unusual prosperity. There is a demand for houses both small and large beyond the supply; there are 300 more children in the schools than last year; there is an increase of some $3,000 in the receipts from water rates; the real estate market is showing signs of increased activity; everything in fact points to material additions to the city's population and increasingly to an increase in the city's wealth. In a few years there will be a great many more people to pay these debts and the payment of them is likely to drive people from taking a residence here, as the high rate has already deterred many. If the rate is somewhat lower this first year we can say with truth that extraordinary expenditures then required an extraordinary levy but that the system of improvements, established for the benefit of other generations as well as for those of the present, are to be paid for by a wise arrangement extending over many years, and involving hardships to no one. If the rate is higher this year than last, there is no doubt but that the hesitancy of investors already evident will be increased, and accessions will be less numerous to a community which has started an expensive system of public improvements on the pay as you go policy.

These principles are not stated by way of argument but as voicing the general sentiment on the question and applied in the arrangement of our city finances and when we proceed to give some details in regard to the proposed levies for the present year. The state levy this year is 4 1/2 mills, or one half mill less than last year. The school levy is 11 mills, or 1 1/2 mills more than last year, one half the difference being due to the establishment of the free text book system and the remainder to interest on new bonds to additional expense for buildings and to largely increased attendance. No part of the taxpayers burden is more certain and carefully expended than that collected by the school board and no one brings a better return in manner as well as in higher way. The city's levy has not yet been determined but 12 or 13 mills together with the estimate for expirations from water etc will cover the annual appropriation made last April and as the law says that no appropriations shall be made except at that time we presume that the levy will not exceed the figures given which are from 1 to 2 1/2 mills less than those of last year.

The county commissioners in fixing their part of the levy must consider in addition to the usual expenses the cost of the court house site which was purchased at a cost of $40,000. Outside of this the necessary rate would be 10 1/2 mills and the payment of the whole of the purchase money would require 4 1/2 mills more. This then is the schedule:

	1891	1891 including one third of court house site	1892	1892 including one third of court house site	1893	1893 including one third of court house site
State	4 1/2	4 1/2	4 1/2	4 1/2	4 1/2	4 1/2
School	11	11	11	11	11	11
City	16	16*	12*	12*	12½*	12½*
County	12	12	11	11	12	12
	43 1/2	43 1/2	38 1/2	38 1/2	39 1/2	39 1/2

* Minimum.

The credit of the county is of the best. Its bonds could be readily floated at 6 per cent. or even less. Bonds must be issued for the construction of the court house building, for that certainly cannot be built on the "pay as you go" plan without serious hardships to taxpayers. There is no good reason why the same plan which has been successful in the city finances should not be adopted by the county.

Taking all things into consideration, therefore it would be a very serious mistake for the commissioners to pay more than one third the cost of the court house site this year. The reduction of two mills below last year's rate is not for a great amount, but in this case it involves not only a principle, but also a sentiment which will have a considerable influence on the prosperity of the city in the coming year.

Every week and every day of those which remain is one of opportunity for the Republicans of this state. The People's party has not made a vote in the past two months. They have lost a great many. From many different points comes the same story of changes back to the old party and of dissatisfaction with the People's leaders and more especially with the People's platform. It has been a campaign of education. The simple statement of the principles of the new party has been sufficient in many cases to change votes and the exposure of the false pretense that the new party was favorable to silver has been effective. There is no reason for over confidence on the part of Republicans but there is good reason to believe that earnest work will bring satisfactory results.

This is not one of the years when any voter can truthfully declare that it is not worth while to vote. The issues are so clearly defined and of so great importance that election day should find every man at the polls to cast a vote for the preservation of the credit of the state and the defeat of the Greenback party. This is the supreme issue and this is the issue that should lead every man of whatever party, who has the interests of the state at heart to vote the Republican ticket in its entirety.

Sir Boyle Roche a Famous "Bulls."

Sir Boyle Roche too, whose bulls made him famous, on one occasion assured a wrongly stricken body of voters that if elected he would put a stop to smuggling practices in the Shannon by having two frigates stationed on the opposite points at the mouth of the river, and there they should remain fixed with strict orders not to stir, and so, by cruising and cruising about they would be able to intercept everything that should attempt to pass between them.

Another time when on the hustings he observed: "England it must be allowed is the mother country, and therefore I would advise them (England and Ireland) to live in filial affection together like sisters as they are and ought to be." This was only equaled by his when opposing his antiministerial motion wishing the end in view was the bottom of the bottomless pit.—London Standard.

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Notes and Comments by the Rev. Jos. H. Green, D. D.

We surrender our column this week to an article by Edward W. Bok, the clever editor and manager of that extraordinarily successful paper, The Ladies' Home Journal. It is a plea for total abstinence singularly temperate, well reasoned and cogent. Probably the greatest stumbling block in the way of the temperance cause is the lamentable intemperance of speech of some of its advocates. They unwittingly do more to hinder the cause that is dear to their hearts than its enemies can do because truth is not upon their lips, neither is the law of kindness upon their tongues.

The article that follows has so much sweet reasonableness in it that we commend it to all our readers. It is entitled "Why I Never Tasted Liquor."

First of all I never did so because I seemed to possess an inborn hatred of all intoxicants. Although brought up with wine on the table I could never be induced to taste of it, when as a child some light wine would be placed to my mouth to sip. To some good mothers this may seem an unwise thing for my parents to have done, but it must be remembered that I was born and brought up until my sixth year in Holland a country where drunkenness is never seen but where people high and low believe in a moderate use of light wines and have been brought up for years in that belief.

"But as I grew older I began to apply reasoning to my principles. Being early thrown into business life and among men older than myself I naturally matured quickly. I was about 16 years old if I remember rightly, when I began attending public dinners and assemblages in the capacity of a newspaper reporter. Wines were more freely used then at dinners than now and I soon saw that I must make up my mind whether, at these gatherings, I should partake of wines or decline them. I had been trained to the belief that it was always best to err on the safe side, and as I sat down to the first public dinner I ever attended—a New England dinner in Brooklyn—I turned down all the wine glasses set before my plate, and this I have followed ever since.

"At first, my principle never to touch liquor or spirits of any kind directed to me the chaffings of my friends. I was told it looked 'babyish' that I could not expect to go out much and keep to my principle, that I would often find it considered as discourteous to refuse a simple glass of wine tendered me by my hostess. But I made up my mind that there was no use of having a principle unless one stuck to it. And I soon saw that people respected me the more for it. And just let me say right here to all my young readers who may see these words, I never lost one friend by my refusals, but I made scores of friendships; of men, from one who has occupied the presidential chair down, of women among whom are the best and most famous in our land to-day.

"I honestly believe that a young man who starts out in this life with a fixed principle, whether it be that he will not drink, smoke, or indulge in anything which in his heart he feels is not good for him, or in which he does not conscientiously believe and adheres to that principle, no matter under what circumstances he may be placed, holds in his hand one of the most powerful elements of success in the world to-day. There is a great deal of common sense abroad in this world of ours and a young man with a good principle is always safe to depend upon it. The men and women in this world whose friendships are worth having are the men and women who have principles themselves and respect them in others, especially when they find them in a young man.

"Another thing which led me to make up my mind never to touch liquor was the damage which I saw wrought by it upon some of the finest minds with which it was ever my privilege to come into contact, and I concluded that what had resulted injuriously to others might prove so to me. I have seen, even in my few years of professional life, some of the smartest, yes, brilliant, literary men dethroned from splendid positions, owing to nothing else but their indulgence in wine. I have known men with salaries of thousands of dollars per year, occupying positions which hundreds would strive a lifetime to attain come to beggary from drink. Only recently there applied to me for any position I could offer him, one of the most brilliant editorial writers in the newspaper profession—a man who two years ago easily commanded $100 for a single editorial in his special field. That man became so unreliable from drink that editors are now afraid of his articles, and although he can to-day write as forcible editorials as at any time during his life, he sits in a cellar in one of our cities writing newspaper wrappers for one dollar per thousand. And that is only one instance of several I could recite here. I do not hold my friend up as 'a terrible example;' he is but one of a type of men who convinced me and may convince others, that a clear mind and liquor do not go together.

"I know it is said when one brings up such an instance as this 'Oh well that man drank to excess. One glass will hurt no one.' How do those people know that it won't. One drop of kerosene has been known to throw into flame an almost hopeless tire, and one glass of liquor may fan into flame a smoldering spark hidden away where we never thought it existed. The spark may be there and it may not. Why take the risk. I prefer a healthy boy or young man who never do him the least particle of good it may do him harm. The man for whom I have absolutely no use in this world is the man who is constantly asking a young man just to have a little. One glass, you know. A man who will wittingly urge a young man whom he knows has a principle against liquor is a fiend of the deepest dye."

Then [illegible] and among [illegible] oyster opening matches and lost only two of them. Most of the contests were over the opening of 100 oysters. At one time Balmer opened 100 oysters in 4 minutes and 22 seconds which is now the best "straight knife" record. Balmer has also opened 1 000 oysters in 55 minutes. The two matches in which he was defeated he lost to John Gillon. The first match was best two out of three records in opening 100 oysters but owing to a dispute Balmer retired from the contest, leaving the match to Gillon. At the second match Balmer was beaten by eight oysters.

Among the lightning operators on William Foster's score the most conspicuous undoubtedly is Black Frank as Frank Barrett, who is as white a man as any other white man in this country is dubbed by his associates. Mr. Barrett has spent a good many years in the south and from his association there in a business way with the darkies he came to be called Black Frank.—New York News.

Discarded India Rubber Utilized.

It is a matter of common knowledge that in the rubber goods even of the highest quality are perishable. Although not subject to any great wear and tear the time comes when the rubber loses its elasticity and becomes soft and rotten. Hitherto such perished rubber has represented a waste material for which no use could be found; but a process recently invented the perished rubber can be made, it is said once more serviceable.

By incorporating the waste rubber with certain hydrocarbons mixed with a proportion of Trinidad asphalt by adding to the mixture certain vegetable oils and submitting the product to heat there is produced a substance to which the name of Planavite has been given. It can be made hard and dense or soft and pliable by modifying certain parts of the process and it seems to be applicable to most of the various purposes for which pure rubber is used.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Cutaway Coat.

The cutaway frock coat may be worn at any time during the day and is really the most useful all around garment in the wardrobe. The man in the black cutaway of dull finish cloth is dressed for any emergency that may arise during the hours of the day. It is suitable for the afternoon tea and for the morning stroll. It has been worn with excellent effect with the top hat at the most wedding—indeed its efficacy and becomingness is so apparent that many of the more conservative swells have been deterred through their fealty to this garment of semidress from pinning allegiance to the more distinguished but trying lines of the long tailed double breasted frock.—Clothier and Furnisher.

The superintendent of the money order office seldom receives any explanation of the delay in cashing a money order Many duplicates are issued [illegible] there is a regular form of [illegible] duplicates kept on file in all money order offices, and all that the [illegible] receives usually is an application [illegible] on one of these blanks On receipt of the postmaster forwards the [illegible] sends a receipt for the [illegible] the delay in having the [illegible] sometimes the application [illegible] sends a letter to D Mc[illegible] Intendent giving an explanation of the case

Such an explanation usually results from the exercise of [illegible] the interior of Pennsylvania [illegible] a bundle of money orders will [illegible] found to the [illegible] there was a lot, with [illegible] congratulations in the shape [illegible] and many of the [illegible] money orders Those money orders [illegible] bush put to rest [illegible] his desk and they were [illegible] and held awaiting the settlement [illegible] sums

Dr Macdonald [illegible] ton of old money orders [illegible] recently from a newspaper [illegible] named Woodrow, living in South Carolina His business had [illegible] hands of a receiver and [illegible] orders that came in just [illegible] the receiver's cash When Woodrow came to his own again he found [illegible] ment of invalid money orders which he sent to Dr Macdonald [illegible] duplication

The money order office has been running as a postal savings institution for [illegible] years Men who go from the east to make their fortunes in the new west frequently buy with their savings money orders payable to themselves at New York Philadelphia or some other eastern city They know that the money is secure because the money order cannot be cashed by any one else if it is lost or stolen and because the money can always be had on application for a duplicate by the original purchaser There is no savings bank more secure - Washington Post

A London Restaurant Bill.

The detailed bills which one receives at hotels and restaurants are often worth keeping as curiosities Here is a transcript of one received in a restaurant not far from London It consists of a thin slip of paper, seven inches long by two and a half inches wide, with the name of the restaurant at the top and a printed list of sixteen articles which may be ordered with blanks for carrying out the items in shillings and pence, the figures here given are pence

Joint	9
Cheese and butter	4
Beer	6
Liquors and aerated waters	4
Bread	1
Attendance	1

To get a napkin in that eating house one had to order it just as he would any article which he wished to eat otherwise he would go without The most curious thing here, however, is the item "liquors and aerated waters." No one could ever guess that this was designed to cover a cup of tea No tea was provided for in the bill, and the waitress evidently thought it wise to take a title sufficiently inclusive

It will be noticed that "attendance" was charged for in this bill It would be rash to assume that this absolved the patron from the customary "tip"—London Cor New York Tribune.

The Typical Society Girl.

One is often ignorant of the existence of young girls in the houses of one's friends until by chance they are revealed at a matinee of the opera, sitting demurely in the family box, or at their summer homes, in horseback, or playing at tennis on the lawn. The dancing class controlled by a bevy of matrons who carefully select the names sent out upon invitations to belong to it, is her training ground for polite society. At these classes, meeting in the afternoon or evening once a week, the mothers sit around the halls while the boys and girls go through the exact forms to be observed in the ballroom of the future. When the young person is ready to be introduced into society the mother, as often as not issues cards for a general afternoon reception of her friends Gowned in simplest home dress, high at the throat and of pure white, the debutante stands beyond her mother at the chief entrance of the drawing room Behind her, piled upon tables or the piano, is seen a veritable hecatomb of flowers sent in by friends to celebrate the hour Each guest, after speaking to the mother or chaperone, is then mentioned by name to the debutante, who bows or curtsems as she has been taught to do

Later in the afternoon when the crowd thins out, the girl, surrounded by her particular set of friends, displays her flowers her gown, her new ring or the string of pearls presented by a good papa A dinner follows, at which her mother presides and around which the same young people assemble Here she is queen of the feast, and amid flowers and lights and music and kind words no wonder that the vista of society seems to her like fairyland From that day on she is rarely seen in public without her parents, or one of them, or a fitting substitute —Mrs. Burton Harrison in Ladies' Home Journal

A Wonderful School

The modern method of teaching differs from the methods employed a generation ago. The fathers and mothers of today can remember the rattan—how it seasoned their school days and, like the sword of Damocles, hung over maps and problems. The teacher of today is not a driver but a leader The teacher is full of ideas and the modern methods embodies a plan of—not punishment for ill doing, but reward for well doing The negative government is replaced by a positive government, and the youthful nature yields to the treatment

In a certain public school in New York city there are no bad boys no poorly dressed boys- no dirty boys - no laggards - no boys with mud on their shoes- no boys with buttons off their coats and this school is situated not far from a tenement house district. There is but one rule in this school—and that is an unchangeable and inflexible as it is simple

"Do right because it is right," is the rule

There may be other schools of this nature but of this one I know personally Every boy in the school is individualized There is a roll of honor than which the book of the recording angel is not more carefully kept Good work is recorded therein The keeper of this book aims to strike the keynote of every child's nature —which, once sounded every fiber of that nature vibrates in unison Does a poor boy need a coat or a pair of shoes? There is a storehouse of supplies which never fails No one knows whence the supplies come but they come

This is a new element in public school education —New York Recorder

Oddities of Color Blindness

While the number of color blind persons is not very large, only about five in every hundred suffering from any defect in this respect, and most of those being affected only in a minor degree, yet the phenomenon sometimes assumes very remarkable phases

Captain Abney has stated that he had found two persons who possessed monochromatic vision—that is to say, all colors appeared to them to be simply different shades of gray

If the reader will look at a photograph of a landscape, or better, of a garden filled with brilliant flowers, he will be able to form an idea of the appearance which nature must present to one who suffers from the infliction called monochromatic vision —Youth's Companion.

The first match of the High School football team resulted in victory for their opponents, the College by a large number of points to nothing The defeat was without disgrace as it was simply a case of the better team winning; but the High School made two undoubted mistakes which materially affected the game although even if the errors had been avoided the superior back play of the College would have insured victory The mistakes lay in not playing a loose enough game and in not playing long enough periods The High School men were evidently anxious about the strong center of their opponents but their anxiety should not have led them to bunch upon that point, and in the second place, as they evidently had the wind of their foes who weakened perceptibly toward the end of each period, it would have been far better to play two forty-five minute periods as an opportunity for scoring might have been thus gained by the better condition of the High School The obvious absence of good concerted work on the part of the losers can only be supplied by practice which time will give. Later on in the season it is hoped that the return match will be played and if fortune is not to change, yet the adverse total may be lowered.

The cadet corps of the school is hard at drill, and even in the eyes of critical observers, is making progress towards the full smartness and efficiency they hope and mean to attain. Endeavor is being made to obtain the latest pattern rifle from headquarters, and seems likely to be successful. There has also been some talk of amalgamating the various cadet corps of the city for battalion drill occasionally and if this can be done, it will undoubtedly be of great advantage for one and all concerned Meanwhile the schoolhouse echoes to the squad of help

Sermons to Young Women

Courses of sermons addressed to young men and to young people are frequent, but the question is often asked why especially in these days, should there not also be courses of sermons to young women" Rev. James B Gregg, D D, will begin such a course at the First Congregational church to-morrow evening The subjects of the successive discourses will be as follows

1 The Young Woman at Home
2. The Young Woman at Work
3. The Young Woman at her Books.
4 The Young Woman in Society
5 The Young Woman in Church and Charity

Dr. Gregg will preach Sunday morning as usual

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The speaker at the young men's rally to-morrow afternoon in the rooms of the association will be Mr. S D. Fuller, who for the last twelve years has been engaged in Y. M C A work in different parts of the country, and for the past six years has been the general secretary at Honolulu, Sandwich Islands All men are invited to attend this meeting for men only at 4 15 to-morrow afternoon in the rooms of the Y M C A corner North Tejon and Kiowa streets

Regular gymnasium class in the "gym" to-night from 8 to 9 Many testimonials have come to the gymnasium committee of the benefit the gymnasium work had been to those who were in the regular classes last year A new feature has been added to this department this fall which is that each man who desires it may be measured and examined and given just such work as he may need to develop his weak points All exercises are given with a view to graceful and harmonious development of the body rather than to enable a man to do fancy or trick work

The following comes from the pen of one of Omaha's prominent business men in regard to the Y M C A He says "It has ever been my judgment that the Y M C A is an acquisition to any city and that the young men should consider themselves most fortunate who are so situated as to have the membership privileges within their grasp and since I have become acquainted with its inner workings and am in a position to more fully appreciate the privileges proffered and enjoyed by all the members, I can safely state that no city is complete without its Y M C A, and that your association cannot be valued too highly I highly recommend the association to all men and urge the cooperation and support of our business men, as its surroundings are elevating, spiritually, morally, intellectually and physically"

The business men of this city are showing that they appreciate the work of the organization in this city and are giving it many of them, their hearty and liberal support.

Private telegrams received from Denver yesterday state that the recent shipment of thirty two tons of ore from the Work company will run something over $4,000 This was substantiated by the president of the Work company

The Work company is now engaged in the erection of a stamp mill for use in reducing the ores from Morning Glory 2 and 1 and also from the Poorman and Ida B These are free milling ores The company will still continue to ship to the smelter the ore from Morning Glory No 1

Articles of incorporation of the Arvilla Tunnel and Mining company were filed yesterday the incorporators being Chas D Wood, Wm R Owen, Morgan M Van Fleet and Wm H Malone The capital stock is $1,200,000 The offices will be located in Denver and the company will operate in this county

Last Evening at G A. R. Hall

At G A R. hall last night there was given a sociable under the auspices of the Woman's Relief Corps A handsome sum was realized, which will be applied to the relief of two orphan children, whose father served in the Union army. Colonel Heron, commander of Post 20 presided, and there were present quite a number of the members each of the Grand Army, W R C, S of V and Ladies' Aid society, the youngest society of the four in our city in the interest of the Union veterans There was present little Dollie Kezeler, whose parents reside at 221 Fountain street Dollie is a contortionist, who performs wonderfully for one of her age She has performed at the Auditorium in Chicago, whence the family moved to this city for residence. The evening's entertainment was further enlivened by enjoyable readings by Miss Ida Hohn and by the acting of charades.

Mr Giles Otis Pearce yesterday applied at the county clerk's office to be registered, and when the question was asked him if he was married or single, refused to answer The deputy in charge then refused to register him. In the Evening Mail last night Mr. Pearce printed a statement of the case and declared his intention of presenting a ballot on election day. If refused a vote he declares his intention of contesting the matter in the courts, holding that the state has no right to adopt a law requiring him to answer a question that in no way affects his right to vote for federal officers.

The finance committe of the city council met yesterday afternoon and wrestled with the problem of the city's tax levy. The committee also invited the other members of the council to meet with them and the mayor lent his presence to the conference The pleasant coons of the city finances were thoroughly discussed, Some of the aldermen favored a levy of 12½ mills; some others favored 13½. A medium of 13 was finally thought to be about right, and that amount will probably be reported to the next meeting of the council

He Subscribed

He was a well to do farmer with a grown son or two, and they were thrifty One day not long ago the old man came into the office of the county paper and found the editor at his desk The editor was surprised He had known the farmer for twenty years or more, but he had never seen him in that place before

"Good morning" remarked the farmer rather sheepishly

"How are you" responded the editor "Glad to see you I thought you might be coming around some day."

"Yes," and the old man's face grew rosy red

"What's the news?" inquired the editor.

"I want to subscribe for the paper That's news, ain't it?" and the farmer laughed

"Well, yes; very good news."

"How much is it a year?"

"One dollar cash, or a dollar and a half if paid at the end of the year."

The farmer took out his pocketbook

"Give me five dollars' worth," he said "Here's the money."

The editor gave such unmistakable evidence of surprise and curiosity that the farmer felt called on to explain.

"I guess," he said, "I ought to have done it before. We and the boys have talked about it, but we thought there wasn't anything much in the newspapers anyway, and we thought we could get more out of a dollar a year some other way. Not long ago we ran across a man with a fine plan to make money. No matter what it was We went into it and we are short now a thousand dollars. The other fellow ain't though. One of our neighbors read us all about him in his paper yesterday. If I'd begun taking your paper twenty years ago I'd still have 980 years to run on that $1,000 and gave up for nothing. Send on your paper, and when my time's up let me know. Good day," and he went out.—Detroit Free Press

Persistent Mr Bowles

"Humph" said the irritated barber "It's easy enough to kick. Didn't I slice all the hair off your face? What more do you expect for fifteen cents?"

"The stubble has been removed," remonstrated the customer, "but with it a large amount of my cuticle"

"Well, what of it?" demanded the barber. "Didn't I dab alum on that cut in your ear?"

"You did," the exacting customer confessed, "but you cut the tip off my nose."

"And I posted it on with court plaster"

"True enough, but you severed one of my eyebrows and lost it on the floor."

"I kept the razor out of your eye, didn't I?"

"You did."

"And only gashed your neck in four places?"

"Quite right."

"I'm afraid you're a kicker. My advice to you is to grow a beard or buy a safety razor and not come around insulting union barbers. You're one of those fellows that want a dollar's worth of surgery with each shave and then kick because you weren't chloroformed."—New York Herald

"AROUND PIKE'S PEAK"

FOURTEEN BEAUTIFUL HALF-TONES,

Issued by the Gazette Printing Company!

PRICE ONE DOLLAR

THERE have been a great many very beautiful souvenir books of Colorado Springs and vicinity issued, but none that are in any way similar to this. The pictures are all of large size, suitable for framing. The plates are the finest photo-engravings that could be secured from the best photographs, by the leading process engravers of Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago The views are, many of them, to be found only in this collection, made from photographs taken expressly for us There is no descriptive matter beyond a title line for each plate The workmanship in printing and binding is the best that could be put on the book.

Laughter and merriment will reign at the opera house next Tuesday evening the occasion being the reappearance here of Fowler and Warmington's comedians, in that very funny comedy "Skipped by the Light of the Moon" This play, which was received with great favor by a large audience on the occasion of its last visit has recently undergone a complete revision A new song has been introduced and the latest popular and most catchy music from the new operas has been secured and will be heard for the first time here

The "four hundred" of colored society enjoyed the first Assembly ball last evening the occasion being a ball given by Mr Henry H Cox in honor of his daughter Miss Lee Jackson last Friday About forty couples of invited guests were present and enjoyed the evening in dancing to the music of Hopper's orchestra served by Mr Casey at midnight The young lady received a large number of very handsome presents from her friends Mr Casey has for several years been the steward on General manager Cochrane's car, "The Mountaineer," and he and his daughter are quite popular among the Colorado Springs people of African descent

The Ensign.

The appearance of "The Ensign" at the opera house Monday evening will be a theatrical event of unusual importance "The Ensign" is a naval drama and exploits our gallant tars in a strongly woven patriotic plot It is founded upon the Mason Slidell incident of the early days of the rebellion when our seizure of the Confederate commissioners nearly set the world by the ears Curiously enough the same question was somewhat involved in a recent difficulty with Chili The Ensign comes here with a first class company and splendid scenic effects It is said in New York that the shipboard scene in the third act is one of the most realistic and well full pictures ever placed upon the stage It represents a section of the after part of an American man of war as it appears in action showing the gun deck the officers at their stations and every spar yard and spike and gun is reproduced as in the original The officers and sailors are seen going about their habitual duties just as the camera caught them There is another ship board scene representing the spar deck of the same vessel as she lies at the Washington navy yard The beautiful bay of Havana Cuba with its foreign fleets riding at anchor and the White House at Washington and other new scenery and effects form a strikingly lovely setting to the piece

During the storm of Wednesday a track-walker of the Rock Island road was frozen to death He was attending to his duties and evidently became bewildered and benumbed with the cold for he laid down under a culvert, where he died The body was recovered and taken to Fal on Thursday evening The man's name could not be learned and the case has not yet been reported to the coroner

THE GAZETTE some time since described a patent which Dr Wm Fowler has secured on an electric device for fire hose, by which the officers at the plug and nozzle can communicate one with another He has recently added another invention to this by which communication can be made from any point along the line As this has not yet been patented it is hardly fair to describe it, but it is quite as ingenious as the original device
